

Support for Chapter 100 – A Shared Knowledge Infrastructure for Positive, Local Food Systems

This Letter of Intent is signed by an individual in their personal capacity. It expresses support for the direction and careful development of Chapter 100. It does not create any financial obligation, membership obligation, exclusivity, data-sharing obligation, transfer of rights, or legally binding cooperation agreement.

I support the vision of Chapter 100 (<https://wiki.chapter100.org/en/home>) as a shared knowledge infrastructure for Positive, Local Food Systems in Europe.

Valuable knowledge already exists in farms, communities, regional initiatives, research projects, food networks, cultural traditions, and the lived experience of countless people. Much of it is fragmented, difficult to access, or at risk of being lost over time.

Chapter 100 aims to connect this knowledge without removing it from its source. The intention is not to absorb knowledge into one central voice, but to create a shared space in which origins, authorship, context, and differing perspectives can remain visible and traceable.

What I am supporting

- A shared knowledge space in which practical experience, scientific knowledge, cultural memory, and local observations can come into relationship.
- Clear provenance: where possible, knowledge remains attributable and citable to its original author, organisation, project, or publication.
- Plurality: different positions may remain visible rather than being artificially merged into a single answer.
- Responsible use of AI: Ethical Artificial Intelligence may help find, connect, compare, and contextualise knowledge, but it should not replace human judgement, learning, or responsibility.
- A long-term, public-interest stewardship model that is not dependent on one individual and that can care for quality, infrastructure, and access over time.

What this signature does not mean

My signature does not mean that I am transferring documents, data, intellectual property, or usage rights to Chapter 100. Any future contribution of material, participation in a project, or specific form of cooperation will be discussed and agreed separately. Questions concerning licences, publication, updates, withdrawal, technical AI use, and data handling will be addressed transparently before relevant materials are incorporated.

Why this matters

If knowledge can remain rooted in its source while becoming easier to find and connect, people and communities can build on each other's experience instead of repeatedly starting from zero. Chapter 100 can become a living library that supports collaboration, collective learning, and locally grounded transformation across Europe.

With my signature, I personally support the laying of these foundations and the further development of Chapter 100 in this direction.
